Mission in the United States

In 1854, Sister Sarah was sent to the United States to establish a new convent in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The city was rapidly expanding and faced numerous social challenges, including poverty, disease, and immigration. Undeterred, Sister Sarah immersed herself in the community, working tirelessly to provide aid and support to those in need.

Healthcare and Education

One of Sister Sarah's primary focuses was healthcare. She recognized the urgent need for accessible and affordable medical care, especially among the poor and vulnerable. In 1873, she founded Mercy Hospital, the first Catholic hospital in Pittsburgh. The hospital provided critical medical services to thousands of patients, regardless of their background or ability to pay.

Sister Sarah also believed that education was essential for empowering individuals and communities. She established several schools, including St. Xavier's Academy for girls and St. Mary's School for boys. These institutions provided quality education and vocational training to countless students, helping them to break the cycle of poverty and achieve their full potential.

Social Justice and Advocacy

Beyond her work in healthcare and education, Sister Sarah was an outspoken advocate for social justice. She fought tirelessly for the rights of women, immigrants, and the marginalized. She established the Sisters of Mercy Relief Fund to provide financial assistance to needy families and individuals.

Sister Sarah's commitment to social justice extended to the national level. She lobbied Congress to pass the Pure Food and Drug Act and the Child Labor Act, landmark legislation that protected the health and well-being of countless Americans.

Legacy of Compassion and Service

Sister Sarah Pick passed away on January 22, 1914, at the age of 81. Her legacy of compassion and service continues to inspire countless people around the world.

Today, Mercy Hospital is a thriving healthcare system with multiple locations throughout Pennsylvania. St. Xavier's Academy and St. Mary's School continue to provide excellent education to students from diverse backgrounds. And the Sisters of Mercy Relief Fund continues to provide financial assistance to those in need.
